

STRUCK HIS WIFE AT PATROL BOX

Policeman George Murray was summoned to the residence of John Keating, 446 South Second street, last night by the latter's wife, to arrest him for assaulting her and raising a riotous disturbance in the house. Murray found Keating drunk on a lounge, and the house in a cyclonic state of disorder, the result of the rum-crazed man's rampage.

The big Third ward cop had a lively time of it subduing the ferocious fellow and gave him a richly deserved shaking at the patrol box when he caught his wife by the hair and tried to assault her.

This morning in Police Court, Recorder Stackhouse sent the obstreperous prisoner to jail for one month, as his wife did not appear to press an assault and battery charge against him.

Keating's face was a sight, from a beating he got on Kaighn avenue on Saturday night in a drunken brawl.
